

Robin Lange

Does your community have enough water & power supply already in place to support a data center without negatively impacting the residents? Will an increase in those limited resources to meet the needs of a Data Center have any effect whatsoever on the nearby communities? No increase in water bills? No decrease in water availability and quality? No change in the emissions (both visible and non-visible) to you surrounding communities? Will there be no adverse effects of reduced air quality, water quality, water availability, power availability & power costs on these communities? Will there be no increase of the cost to be alive for those people who live nearby?