

Irene Carbajal

I believe that eventually you still have a lot of energy going out as an output that I am against the project but you also need to describe the sciences to determine where exactly you're using your fuel cells what's being produced what's being taken out if it is non-potable water or potable water that we use but in New Mexico we do appreciate the lack of water in certain areas.