

Mitchell Chapman

I oppose construction of Yucca Growth Infrastructure's gas-powered fuel cell plant. The proposed plant would emit ten million tons per year of climate warming gases – more than the emissions of Las Cruces, Albuquerque, and Santa Fe combined.

Climate-warming emissions are forcing environmental changes all over the globe, including warming and increasing aridity in New Mexico. This proposed plant would further harm New Mexico's climate, with little benefit in exchange.