I'm writing this, as I am against project Jupiter. I believe that we shouldn't have large data centres, which could literally ruin our world. Instead of building such large data centres, we should be helping endangered animals so they don't go extinct. We could also use the money for helping the hungry, the poor or the ones going through war. But when we lose the privilege of clean water, everyone will be affected by it including the wealthy though they might experience it slower. Also, we lived for many and many years with AI and large data centres normally and without any problems. We do we, all of a sudden, need it so much? Please think how this will affect you, others, and the earth.
