

Destiny Smith

As a lifelong New Mexican, I firmly believe that the magic of New Mexico is that we take care of our people and our land. Allowing the building of wasteful infrastructure, including this data center would be incredibly harmful to our communities and our beautiful state. It is the job of our government to put the people first and this type of development. Does the opposite of that. It puts the interest of private business above the interest of the people that make the state so great. Our communities should always come first.