

David Marble

Let's be honest. None of us need another data center, and we live in the desert. Beginning construction on this project would be the worst idea for New Mexicans. We are already under extreme water restrictions, and the local government just keeps trying to break the law to get this data center in. Why are they in such a rush? I have already voted for officials to block this project and I will continue to support elected officials that are looking out for the citizens' best interest, instead of lining their own pockets.