While I want to support this project...and it's advancement opportunities it offers... I just don't trust it. Companies of this size don't really care about local communities. Not truly. Having heard about Oracle laying off over a thousand employees... This honestly feels like the beginning of a rather dystopian reality for New Mexico.

This reminds me of that one company (Pacific Gas and Electric) that lied to it's community and ended up causing serious harm to its residents.

This does not have my support.
