

Rosabella Woodruff Woodruff

I am someone who lives with people in the electronic business, and one of the greatest pains in my life would be all of his hard work going to waste because of something that we don't particularly need. I think data centers are for people who are lazy who can't think for themselves and for people who are just downright stupid. This is not good for our job economy and honestly, it should've been stopped many many months ago.