

Caleb Cooper

As a Christian, I do not approve of the native environment and already fragile communities of New Mexico to be further endangered and exploited by companies who do not have our best interests in mind, who only care about lining their pockets, and who have yet to prove that their businesses can even be profitable. In the event that these oligarchs do begin to generate revenue through AI, it is still imperative that we put the lives of plants, animals, and most importantly humans, before the idol of convenience. I cannot reconcile the greed and destruction showcased in recent years by the powerful and wealthy with the God I worship and have committed my life to. Our first commandment from The Lord was to steward all of creation, and countless studies and scientific evidence supports that Project Jupiter will be in direct opposition to that command. Please, stop. Listen to the people whose lives and surrounding environment will be most impacted by these short-sighted, money-hungry decisions.