

Joshua Santana

This data center is unwanted by the majority of people in the region. By and large data centers are being not wanted by the majority of U.S. citizens. This will have devastating consequences for the air and water quality in an already drought prone area. These effects will outlast any financial benefit that may occur. New Mexico raised me and my family and the data center is not worth it.