I urge the NMED to deny this permit application. The amount of emissions presents a severe public health risk on many levels. The emissions data they have provided is based on faulty science and is little more than a guess, as a project of this scale is untested and unproven. If NMED must allow this project to continue, it needs to require a formal public hearing to have all of this properly investigated. (Along with investigating the recent allegations of falsifying comments and using people's names without their consent.)
