

Anonymous Anonymous

I do not live in Southern Doña Ana County, New Mexico nor in USA at all. I am not even an adult, not even the level age and yet I can guarantee you that Project Jupiter will be a big problem to not just people around there or people in the country but to the whole world. The fuel cells will release a big amount of carbon dioxide, anticipated that more than 10 million tons of carbon dioxide. Can you see how much of the problem that already is? Just now the temperature of the world has risen from greenhouse effect. Even Europe where then temperatures rarely rose over 30 during the summer had now reached over 30°C, in some countries it even reached 40°C. You cannot convince me that having ONE MORE of the largest data centers won't affect anything and won't make the world dying faster. We have over 10,000 data centers, NOT having one more won't kill us, we have been existing way longer than that. Way before these things even started. We can live without data centers and AI, but we cannot live without clean water and the earth. This Project Jupiter is threaten the limited resources of water we depend on to keep living. If this project actually happens and continues, the developers and governments decided to sacrifice the lives of innocence for an uncertain future, it won't be just us or the lower classes that won't survive, it will be everyone. Including the plants, the animals, those who let this happen, the greed for power shall be the death of everyone including those who held the power.

The fact that this project has more invest, the sum of 165 billion US dollars while out there there is a school being shot up, families being separated just because they're 'illegal', children and women being violated and have no rights is very concerning. More surprisingly, no one takes care or bat an eye at those problems. You can try and tell me that this Project Jupiter will change life to the better, providing jobs, opportunities and benefits for the locals and portray the goods of what this will do to the world, but everyone knows the truth. If anything this will destroy even more of what we have. The world already dying enough, not even slowly anymore. We wanted to help stopping and slowing it down, not making it faster.

I may be young, 'inexperienced in life' and my comment might seem to make no sense to you, but in this moment I am also just another human who wanted to live and see the world in future. With this project and many more projects coming for earth's resources, all the younger generations WILL have an uncertain future of whether they will get to see the world tomorrow or will it be gone before they can even speak. The communities of people who do not even agree to this happening will have to pay their price for generations, even after the developers who created this are long gone. You might not see the problem now, but in near future my and many others complains won't be just another protest. It will be the problem everyone has to face, but no one dare to deal. We will not give up, even when we are losing hope. We want and need this project to stop. I will not be trusting a word the developers of this project say, no matter how good the benefits sounded. We only have one earth, we cannot find new planet to replace this and we already destroyed our planet more than half of it. Now we have to pay the price and rebuild the earth together, not continuing to ignore and create whatever data center is.