

Douglas Geusz

I don't think this data center will effectively control its emissions. Even just the higher draw on the electric grid can create emissions away from the data center itself. I don't think the data center will provide enough benefit to New Mexico to account for its environmental and energy costs. I strongly oppose this development, and the people involved have proven that they intend to skirt regulations and cut corners wherever they can.