

Jacob Jacob

New Mexico, in the midst of a decades long drought, doesn't need another source of pollution nor doesn't it need another means of draining our water. We as a state have been explored enough. Please, reconsider the long term ramifications on our already finished environment. The pro-data center ads are not working on New Mexico's citizens. Despite companies viewing us as barren, we understand how beautiful and precious our state is and how it should remain.