

Elsa Mastico

As a long term traveler to New Mexico it horrifies me that this data center could ever get as far along as it has. New Mexico has a beautiful and fragile ecosystem with water problems already. This data center will decimate the water supply and potentially lead to the decline of New Mexico as a viable place to live. To lose an entire state and have an egress of climate refugees could be devastating to our already failing government subsidies. I urge the environmental commission to attempt to stop this project at any cost. For the sake of New Mexico, the people who live there and call it home, and the tourists that love it so much.