

Ana Baxter

Data centers are awful for human physical and mental health, pose hazards to surrounding wildlife, and are destructive to the environment. They not only contribute to noise, air, and water pollution, but they are a direct contributor to climate change. Do not go through with this project, and if there is still question, I request that a public forum be held with supplemental materials for those who do not speak english, and with enough notice (60 days) for all community members to have an equitable chance of participation.