

Anonymous Anonymous

Big corporations need to build something that's actually helpful and not adhering to the soulless goals to only make money. Prison time would be amazing to see for many of these people in these corporations, but they know more loops holes in the system than most and obviously won't be punished unless serious change is made; which won't happen either considering that many of the politicians suck the underparts of the corporations that have caused so much trouble and money issues for the common Samaritan.