

Alfonso Sandoval

I do not think having a data center like this will be beneficial to the communities within New Mexico. I've seen some promises of using only grey water and supposedly generating their own energy, but even if these were true there are no laws that would make them adhere to only doing this from opening to the future. The noise from datacenters has been known to cause physical discomfort and even illness to those around, even within a few miles. Its not good for wildlife. Any promise a company makes is nothing without laws and regulators to enforce them