

Ben Graham

Re-branding a company must not allow it to escape the consequences of lying for the same goals. Previous applications for these same power plants were riddled with "errors" and blatant lies disconnected from any physical reality. The air quality across southern New Mexico has steadily declined over the last decades. Adding a significant pollution source even closer will only worsen the situation and poses significant threat to our population. The fact that none of the owners of YGI will be willing to live downwind of the power plants should provided all the evidence needed to the harm that will be caused.