

anonymous anonymous

This needs to stop, all these tech companies do is take, take, and take. But what will you do when the well, that is nature, runs dry but give us your equally empty apologies and plies. You're not exempt from the consequences of your actions because money and status only protect you from humanity not the wrath of mother nature.