

Zoie Anonymous

We cannot keep building these data centers let alone build a huge one. We are humans are extremely destructive creatures, but I never thought that I would get this bad. They aren't thinking about future generations. They're only thinking about themselves. These data centers are taking drinking water that small communities need to live. Water is needed for life. Where are we supposed to get more if we use all of it? I'm not even allowed to drive yet and I'm having to worry about if I'm gonna have drinking water for the next day. When this planet inevitably dies, where are we supposed to go? Mars? We are destroying our planet at a concerning rate. Maybe instead of using AI we should be focused on nature. If our planet dies, we're going to die with it. There is no Planet B.
