

Lauren Distler

Nobody wants this project to happen. Ordinary people don't stand to benefit, why would we support this? Why would NMED allow this? When I worked at NMED there were people working there that actually cared about sustainable water supplies and clean air. New Mexico has been facing water scarcity issues for decades. Building this plant further jeopardizes our utilities abilities to provide consistent clean water- especially in rural communities. They will be the first to suffer. The water use is just too much and the risks too great. On the topic of air quality.... Somehow I don't believe that the largest methane power plant ever made won't be bad for our air, communities, and ecosystems. We cannot allow this to happen. DENY the permit and put this to bed now. We will continue to fight this.