

Harrison Shaikh

The money that fills a corporations pockets is like when a raccoon puts cotton candy inside water, it dissolves and creates a need for more and more, a greed that will never be satiated. This does not help humanity in the slightest, just helps line pockets and kill our home.