

Brianna Santillanes

This is a massive project that will forever change the trajectory of New Mexico's future, its environment, and its livability for its residents. We already have ample evidence of the devastating consequences these kinds of mega data centers have on the communities they are in. This is the last thing the state needs as we already face drought and poverty.