How about we focus on saving our planet and its people instead of building these data centres that continue to destroy it, harm the surrounding people, animals, and environment? You continue to try and sell this idea to us that these data centres are here to help and you think the majority is stupid enough to believe that so you continue saying the same things over and over again hoping that someday we'll believe it. There's a reason why you don't ask for the opinions of the people who live there if they want the data centre or not. But our opinions never mattered anyways to you. Stuff your pockets as fast as you can before all that's left to leech off and destroy for some more money are your fellow power hungry, corporate freaks. Eat your money when you've killed everyone.
