

Rebekah Pase

I would like to strongly express my concerns about the proposed Project Jupiter data center. I am a member of Dona Ana County, and I am appalled by the propaganda that has circulated throughout the State. No slogan or protest will ever portray the severity of the environmental crisis the United States is currently experiencing at the hands of unaffiliated corporate entities, profiting from the cruelty industry.

The corruption of this project is consistently proven by the vague ads and b-roll footage of a field and water. This has nothing to do with the energy and water consumption this project will cost. This is more than a lifelong struggle against the corrupt bribery of public officials to serve personal interests rather than those of the current population and their future generations.

What frustrates me most is the same corporations that promote this project are the ones that facilitate echo chambers of false information, platformed to the same ground as decades of research performed by educated scientists. These corporations depend on their preconceived notions of Dona Ana County, that waving dollar bills in the faces of people they believe have no dignity will turn the other way and give into the predatory nature of marketing a massively scaled data center in the name of our best interest in economic development. There are no guarantees in these job projections, and it shows a real lack of care towards the citizens and the community to lie only to push this incredibly harmful agenda.

Please hear the cries of our Earth; our world and ecosystem exist beyond the confines of city, county, state, and country lines. This proposed project will cause detrimental harm to everything and everyone regardless of geographic location. The beings on our planet do not deserve this scale of preventable destruction.

Sincerely,
Rebekah Pase