

Jaimie Hashey

As a resident of the state of New Mexico I feel it is very irresponsible to have constructed these data centers so fast without proper environmental impact considerations. The Rio Grande is dry and we are going through a drought. These data centers use tremendous amounts of water. It does not seem logical to build such large data centers so fast in New Mexico. These data centers must be made to have minimal impact on the water supply as well as not polluting the air and land. No one wants to live battling sicknesses because of the pollution produced by these large energy users. Please reject the permit.