

Bruce Baron

This project is only about economic growth. It will obviously have a terrible impact on the environment locally, and vividly take part of the climate change overall. In my country in Europe we had temperatures neighboring 40°C which is a first since more than a decade. Thousands. Thousands of people died in France because of this heatwave. Don't ultra-rich already have enough ? They keep building, investing in projects that are ecologically worst every-time. We have to change our way to construct, create and maintain a climatic balance, if it's not already too late.