

Diane Haugesag

My main concern (of 3) about Project Jupiter is the water that would be used. There is a drought in our state/the Southwest and we live in the desert!

I'm also concerned about who would be getting jobs to work on this project? What is the plan for hiring local people? What targets do you have and how do you assure they are met?

Lastly, the cost of electricity for individuals will skyrocket. Is there a plan to subsidize users? The project alone is using far more electricity than our largest cities combined. How much more will households pay and how will they afford that?

Thank you.