

Alyx Montez

As a US citizen born and raised in New Mexico for my whole life I do not want this state to represent itself with inhumane projects. The inhumane project in question is data centers being built in our state without any regard for the environment or anyone in this country. The exorbitant amount of pollution caused by these data centers has been thoroughly studied, and has been noticed by US citizens directly involved in using the same water that these data centers consume. It is a repulsive mark on this entire state to continue with any and all data center projects due to excessive use of any and all resources required, the main resource being clean water. All US citizens have a right to access clean drinking water, and data centers actively prevent that by taking as much drinking water as the leading companies want without any concern for the way water comes out and back into public water systems. All of this excessive use materials, labor, and water not only affects people as a whole but also becomes a primary pollutant to our atmosphere as a whole. If this continues there will be irreparable damage to people, the environment, and not to mention the status of those involved with these centers. US citizens are not happy with the toxic conditions being caused by these projects and unconcern for public health and safety. I do not want our air quality lowered and I do not want any sort of bill to allow it either.