

Alexandra Ma

Building more data centers is unnecessary and waste of money when men Americas live in poverty. Not only is building such a large data space harmful to the environment because all the needed water to keep it cooled down and functioning, its also very invasive, no local wants to to be driving and see this huge invasive data center that cost so much money to make while the mist the locals in new Mexico live in poverty. And this whole project is so expensive the money could be used to literally anything like feeding children in American schools, feeding families, and putting in money towards free healthcare.