Down here in southern New Mexico, we are angry. It seems powers in the northern part of the state want to force a data center on Dona Ana County without regard to the environmental destruction this building will cause. There are concerns that elected officials are disregarding state laws. Developers agreed to hold a community meeting, but held a job fair instead and failed to submit job reports.

The developers have already proved they cannot be trusted. To address their lack of candor, we demand a community meeting to publicly air the deal making going on without public knowledge.
