

Allison Velazquez

Please, do not go through with this. Everyone in America (maybe even the world), will suffer. I live in a big city, and our air is already extremely contaminated! Late at night, almost 95% of the time, I cannot see the stars. This is because of how much pollution is in the air. Gases and toxins poison innocent people every single day, leaving people sick with diseases and pneumonia. What is the goal in building a new data center? We have about 4 HUGE ones soaking up energy, releasing gas, AND guzzling down our water supply. We need to think about the bigger picture. Technology is advancing, and many of us LOVE that. But will we love extreme thirst and dehydration? Will we love watching the people we love most suffer and die because we wanted to use AI? Will we love watching our world end right in front of us? Getting sucked up in some black hole, just because we wanted to create images? I don't think so.