

Grace Cusson

If project Jupiter is finished and that data center is built, what then? You get all of your money, but what's money worth on a planet that won't exist for another hundred years? You can take and take and take and take, but after taking every single resource that the planet has, it will be too late to reverse what you did. The water will be gone, the sun will be treacherous, and the animals will be dead. To quote a quote that you've surely ignored: When the last tree is cut down, the last fish eaten, and the last fish poisoned, you will realize that you cannot eat money. Stop pretending that you're anything near a person if you are not for the people.