How the fuck are new Mexicans supposed to be new Mexicans without green chile? The data center intends to extract our already minimal water from the farmlands that make our food. The water they would release would contaminate communities and wildlife habitat downstream. Speaking of wildlife, the scale of the data center would destroy migratory patterns and entire ecosystems. If we keep building unless shit where there was nature, nature will keep coming into our towns. Dumb asses who can't understand the planet they destroy should have no power over it. One last warning, if this data center goes up, all responsible parties will die, violently 😊
