

Sarah Calhoun

What a genuinely terrible and selfish idea. Alongside the obvious affect that this will have on the natural environment, this will also harm and damage the social environment. Including schools, homes, and places of work, this gigantic, money-fueled abuse of power will affect every living thing within miles and miles of its existence. The ends cannot and will not ever justify the means, and there must be a better and less destructive method of controlling this situation.