

Lora Sturm

I have major concerns about the environmental impact of this company's proposed enormous natural gas emissions potential, and the use of Bloom Energy's solid oxide fuel cells, known to create hazardous waste for which there is a history of poor disposal practices. Furthermore, it seems incredibly irresponsible to build something that requires so much water in our state when our water is already so scarce. Finally, the placement in Doña Ana county is unfair to the residents who already experience disproportionate pollution.