Lining pockets while the planet burns to a crisp seems to be the way of the world right now. Its really sad to think that new mexico would join suit. This data center is not going to help communities, like they claim. It'll help a couple individuals in the pursuit to further leech money from the masses. I find it quite telling, reading thru all the comments being submitted here, that those in favor of this farce are copy/pasting a prewritten, generic response while those opposed are giving heartfelt, earnest, original opinions as to why this data center is a terrible idea. Those who can think and articulate, vs those who cannot do more than parrot. And who can say if those parroted responses are even coming from actual human beings. Maybe its just bots mass submitting to water down the actual popular sentiment. This data center is a terrible idea in the desert and everyone knows it. Who needs all of this data anyways and what is it being used for? Please think about our futures on this planet.

Sincerely,
