

Damiya Malone

Building a data center that will release 10 million tons of carbon Dioxide annually when most of The untied states of America is in a drought could possibly be one of the most idiotic things that could happen, it will put thousands of people at risk of no water at all and will be a very hurtful ending to our environment when its already dying from other things. Stop project Jupiter!