

Blake Ashby

I've never been to where this data center is being built, but I don't need to. We had the warmest and driest winter I've seen in Colorado since I moved here over 7 years ago. Our headwaters feed the Rio Grande. You rich assholes must be smoking something if you think what you're doing is anywhere near morally okay. Taking drinking water from people and animals should be a real, punishable offense that gets you and anyone else involved a minimum of several years in prison. I hope there's a hell so anyone who decides to follow through with this plan to destroy our planet just that little bit more rot for eternity. Choose the moral path, not the greedy path. Not when you already have enough money to keep your grandkids fat and happy.