

Barbara Wisoff

No Data Centers in New Mexico. The so called "Job Fair" is a gaslighting avoidance of accountability and transparency to push through the Jupiter Project data center despite repeated protests by New Mexicans. Data centers usurp our scarce water supply. Promises of closed loop systems are lies. Fuel cells and gas turbines both use too much water for cooling to be allowed to use up New Mexico's water. There are no water treatments that work for fracking waste. Desalination has problems too, due to abandoned wells leaking and corrupting desalination lines and underground water. This is besides the point. In a water scarce desert region, no polluting data centers should ever be allowed. Data centers are part of a surveillance scheme that also pollutes and enriches the developers and private equity entities while harming the land, the air, the water and the health of New Mexicans. They are a Ponzi scheme built on lies to serve the greedy billionaires and downstream officials eager to grift from their build.