

Jared Conahan

As a lifelong New Mexican I urge the NMED to reject this proposal. The state is already greatly suffering the effects of human-caused climate change; we do not need another facility feigning environmental concern and pumping out carbon emissions, as these facilities most certainly will.

Their building of data centers and infrastructure support them in this land must be avoided at all costs. Going ahead with these plans will cost the New Mexican people far more than any profit these businesses care to dream up.

Our resources are beyond strained, and we will not gain anything worthwhile by permitting these businesses to further pollute the natural beauty of our home.

I ask you again, please reject these construction permits. The people rightly and overwhelmingly oppose these projects.