To Whom It May Concern,

I oppose Project Jupiter because this choice is about more than money. It is about our home and our future.

New Mexico is not empty land. Dona Ana County has families, farms, animals, small businesses, and people who have lived here for many years. This place is important.

I am not against new technology. I know artificial intelligence will be part of the future. I am not against new ideas or new jobs. But big companies should not make plans that leave local people with all the problems if something goes wrong.

Large companies often promise jobs and money. They ask us to trust their plans and trust that everything will work out. But if things do not go as planned, the people who live here are the ones who deal with it. That is not fair.

People say this project will bring jobs. Jobs matter, but they should not be the only reason to say yes. We still do not know how many real full time jobs will go to New Mexico residents.

Good growth should make a community stronger. It should protect our land and water. It should listen to the people who already live here. We should not lower our standards just because a company has a lot of money.

I am also worried about what this decision teaches us. If we approve huge projects without clear answers about water, the environment, or public trust, we send the message that money is more important than people. That is not how good decisions should be made. Companies should have to prove they deserve permission.

Real progress is not just big buildings or big investments. Real progress means healthy communities, safe natural resources, and leaders people can trust.

In the future, people will not judge us by how fast we approved projects. They will judge us by whether we protected our home.

For these reasons, I ask you to reject Project Jupiter.

Sincerely,

Bailey Orwoll
