

Peggy Schott

We need to either stop with all these data centers or put rules in place that protect our water, air and soil and wildlife. We have one going up here, the city of Cedar Rapids had a group working with them, then they jumped ship looking for a new site because they decided they didn't want to work with them. Utilities are already high enough here and the data center was going to make them worse.