

Ember Anonymous

This literally is just an ultra killer of not only our planet and the people around us but life in general. There's literally nothing about this that benefits people and what I mean by people is just genuine ordinary people, the working class of New Mexico and around the world. I've already seen it first hand in my hometown and homestate in Texas with people not even being able to drink any source of clean water for days until finding a reliable import or transportation of clean water. Imagine having to even think that is where we are at right now and continue to believe that this is the genuinely beautiful thing going forward. It will exterminate the very nature of the land around it, and YET AGAIN, without ANY regard or ask of the real people in New Mexico and in America.