

Sydney karnes

I live in santa fe new mexico, though most of the time I live in Albuquerque at the UNM campus where I attend college. It is absolutely unacceptable that a power plant of this size and hazard be built in New Mexico. I love this state because of its beautiful land and sky, and the Yucca Growth Infrastructure's gas-powered fuel cell plant would put at risk all that we enjoy and celebrate here. The plant would contaminate the air for which people for hundreds of years have flocked to New Mexico. I am scared of what may happen to our beautiful state if this plant is constructed. I wanted to raise my children here, but if things like this keep happening I dont believe I'll be able to do that. I'm too afraid for the health and wellbeing of myself, my children, and my children's children to subject them to the pollution and danger that has infected the land. Our families health and safety should be a priority over profit from out of state companies that are trying to drain the life out of our gorgeous state. These permits must be denied and you have to protect us and our state. Please.