

April Yazzie

Although I am not the most educated on the topic; I can very clearly see that there are discrepancies regarding how much water will be used, how it will affect individuals in the surrounding areas energy costs, etc. For a state that is already sending our water off to other states, why are we even considering using what little resources we have for a data center? We don't need it. At all.