

Gracie Wright

Data centers have one of the smallest impacts on humanity when it comes to good things. When it comes to negative impacts, they consume water and make it unusable, produce excessive heat, and damage local environments. The people don't need this. The world does not need another cancer in their land. Nip Project Jupiter in the bud.