

anonymous anonymous

Project Jupiter is comically insidious, hiding behind indigenous or naturalistic names? There is no way everyone is on board with this, everyone I talk to, young and old have complained about the water shortages, and everyone agrees that building data centers here, regardless of how you package them, would not be in the best interest of this land or the beings on it, indigenous to it, and rely on it. Coyotes are wandering into the city because they are looking for water. Life will be lost and if this is allowed, it will be another testament to the racism and carelessness this government has for its people. The public should be given an additional 60 days to review and comment on the air quality permit so community members can participate equitably. The air quality permit application should be denied given Bloom Energy's history of illegal dumping hazardous waste. If the permit is not denied, a public hearing needs to be held in Santa Teresa, in both English and Spanish, with an option to participate virtually. Approving this permit would be government-sponsored environmental racism as residents of Doña Ana County are already disproportionately impacted by environmental pollution. For years, Doña Ana County has been called a 'nonattainment' zone— this means our air quality does not meet federal government rules.