

Jesus Pena

Seeing the rio grande getting lower and lower every day is already devastating. People in northern New Mexico rely on their acequias to keep their farms alive. Entire towns and communities in New Mexico are built around our agriculture.